Computers in Our Classrooms

We live in an amazing time. Computers are changing how we live and work. I think it is very important for schools to have enough computers for students to use.

Students need computers so we can get on the Internet. The Internet is very good for learning. There are many great websites for students. We can see videos of animals we're studying in science class. We can read interviews with famous authors. We can chat online with students in other parts of the country.

When the kids of today are all grown up, we will be living in a world filled with technology. If we don't learn how to use computers and technology now, we won't be able to get good jobs. Right now in our classroom, we have just one computer. Only one or two students at a time can use it. That means we never get enough practice with the computer. We really need more computers!

I hope that our school principal and teachers will read this. They want us to learn a lot. They want us to do great things when we grow up. That's why I think that they should try hard to get more computers for our classrooms.
